Message from the Governor and Tribal Council

Ko’ don dewannan a:deyaye hon a:wan a:ho’i.

As the 2022 calendar year and our traditional year begin, we, the Governor and Zuni Tribal Council, want to share this message.

For the last two years, we have stood united and fought COVID-19. We have remained vigilant by adhering to health orders that mandated social distancing, hand washing, and wearing a mask. We truly appreciate your individual efforts and efforts by our community workers who have diligently provided health care and other vital services. Many of these services are a necessity for our members, especially our elders.

We can say that we have overcome the worst of the pandemic. However, we must continue to be strong in our safety measures. Key to combating this deadly virus are the COVID-19 vaccines. With vaccines and boosters available to almost everyone in the Zuni community, di’sho:maha, get vaccinated and receive your booster shot. Make it a personal challenge to make sure all your eligible family members are vaccinated.

Let’s all look forward to a new and prosperous new year. Let us remember our guiding values, remember to respect our traditional way of life, love and protect one another, and continue to be proud of who we are and where we came from.

The Governor and Tribal Council wish everyone a very Happy New Year.

Taking Care of Our Veterans, Widows, and Their Families

Since June of 2021 to December 2021, the Zuni Veterans Program was fortunate to provide services to all of the eligible veterans and widows who resided in Zuni with the CARES funding. Heading into the second year of the pandemic, the hardship continued to impact all the veterans, widows, and their families. This was a year of re-establishing their livelihoods, but it was still a struggle for most. Because of the cost increase in food and other necessary supplies, assistance included a monthly food voucher to Halona Marketplace or Major Market, payment of light bills, propane fills, bags of wood pellets for those who owned pellet shoves, PPE supplies, and holiday meal baskets in November and December. The supplemental services were greatly appreciated and the support from the local vendors helped the program meet the needs of our clients. Vendor staff also went out of their way to ensure that we were equipped with what we needed. A special thanks to Major Market and their partners for providing the “sweets” to add to our Holiday meal baskets, which was very thoughtful and generous. Program staff followed all safety protocols for Covid-19 during the outreach events.

In addition, Ms. Ericha Fabay with the American Veterans Care Association from San Jose, CA, made a visit on December 8 - 9, 2021. Her organization assists veterans throughout the United States, and we were fortunate to get on her radar. 64 meal baskets were delivered to the veterans in the community on both days. She is

Tribal Investments Update

The Pueblo of Zuni has been working with a team of financial advisors from Morgan Stanley for more than five years. The four advisors that make up the team have offices in New Mexico and Arizona. Over the last five years, the Zuni Tribe has made tremendous improvements to our financial management and well-being.

More recently, we have successfully navigated the challenges created by COVID-19, and Zuni has dramatically improved its financial position during these difficult times. The following information we are presenting in this article provides you with important information regarding how the Zuni Tribe’s financial investments have been performing and where we are today heading into 2022.

Let’s begin with the overall investment portfolio of funds. It has produced at a rate of 10% per year, or $15 million since the beginning of COVID-19. This period of time during the pandemic has been treacherous financially for many governments, businesses, and individuals as well. Working with the financial advisors at Morgan Stanley and the Zuni Investment Committee we have been able to realize very reasonable financial growth while maintaining stability in our asset allocations. This simply means with the advice and oversight of Morgan Stanley and the Zuni Investment Committee, we stayed the course during these challenging times and didn’t overreact or over compensate based on adverse reports in the media about financial collapse.

Another very important financial update is the Zuni employee retirement plan (401k). The plan’s performance was a significant concern five years ago. However, over the past five years the plan has averaged a 10% per year return, and averaged over 13% during the COVID-19 period of time. These returns are more than double what the return was in 2016. The improvements in the Zuni Retirement Plan will allow people to have an improved quality of life once they choose to retire.

During 2021, the Zuni Investment Committee, which advises the Tribal Council and Governor on management of Zuni funds, has worked extensively to update the Zuni Investment Policy Statement (IPS). The Investment Policy Statement is the governing document that determines how Zuni funds will be invested and spent. The modernization of this document will improve the performance of Zuni funds for current and future generations.

Zuni received over $70 million from the Federal Government in COVID-19 relief money. These funds have been invested according to the Zuni Investment Policy Statement and have produced additional returns of over $600,000 for Zuni in just the few months it has been invested.

Returns from the overall Zuni portfolio have been utilized to make significant improvements in the quality life for the Zuni community by supplementing vital governmental operations.

As we head into 2022, it is both the promise and a privilege to report this very positive Zuni Financial Investment Update to the community. We will continue to meticulously oversee and manage these funds for the Zuni people.

Accreditation of ACCRC Continues

Accreditation of ACCRC Continues. Since A:shiwi College and Career Readiness Center was established by Governor Panteah and the Zuni Tribal Council, ACCRC staff have worked to stabilize operations, develop outreach plans and develop the capacity and capability to seek independent accreditation from the Higher Learning Commission. This is a lengthy and complicated process, but the staff have developed a number of necessary documents, policies and procedures to gain eligibility. This process continues and is supported by the Zuni Tribal Council and a great majority of community members and students surveyed.

The A:shiwi College and Career Readiness Center currently serves as an Instructional Site of Navajo Technical University under a Memorandum of Agreement. This status has allowed us to gain an understanding about tribal colleges, develop our experience and expertise as a tribal college, and receive accreditation under NTU from the Higher Learning Commission. We are grateful for the friendship and support of Dr. Elmer Guy and the NTU Board of Regents for this amazing opportunity and support.

The ACCRC Executive Director and staff are following the logic model (shown on page 3) for the creation of tribal colleges, as provided by the American Indian Higher Education Consortium (AIHEC) and the Bureau of Indian Education, Higher Education (BIE). The table shows the steps required to progress toward the goal of becoming eligible to submit a request to these agencies, and their order.

The ACCRC presently meets the majority of the model’s requirements and will continue working with the Advisory Council to assure that all required items are reviewed and supported.

A:shiwi Tribal College Advisory Council appointed:
The Zuni Tribal Council appointed a six-member Advisory Council to assist the ACCRC to comply with AIHEC and BIE requirements for accreditation. The Advisory Council will review policies and accreditation documents, make operational recommendations to the ACCRC Executive Director and staff, as well as inform the Zuni Tribal Council of progress and needs toward accreditation. The Advisory Council members are: Lt. Governor, Carleton R. Bowekaty, Ex-Officio member; Bernadette Panteah; Thalia Natachu; Tina Bowannie (Student representative); Tyler Lastiyano; and Dan Simplicio. We are grateful for the expertise and perspectives each represents and know that they sincerely work toward meeting the higher educational and career development needs of the community. Presently, the Advisory Council has been engaged with reviewing and strengthening the Vision and Mission of the proposed A:shiwi Tribal College. The next items they will review and comment on are the tribal college Charter and the accompanying resolution that will be acted upon next year.

New Grants Awarded to ACCRC Support Community Empowerment and Early Education:
The ACCRC received notice of funding from the W. K. Kellogg Foundation for two exciting projects:

Looking for a Few Good Cooks
Build your Culinary Arts skills through ACCRC’s Culinary Arts Program

Program start: A:shiwi College & Career Readiness Center is still accepting applicants for our Professional Cooking class for the community starting this Spring semester at A:shiwi College. The program is open to adult community members who want to pursue an AA Certificate in Culinary Arts.

Accreditation: The program is sponsored jointly by A:shiwi College and the Pueblo of Zuni, and accredited by Navajo Technical University.

Instructor: Jaye Wilkinson is a retired professional Chef who focuses on fresh, healthy cooking and baking techniques using local products from area suppliers. She is graduated from the Seattle Central College with a degree from the School of Culinary Arts and owns an organic farm in the Timberlake area. Her focus is on small-group and personalized instruction in cooking and baking.

Creative Arts & Entrepreneurship Center:

A grant of $250,000 was provided to create a Creative Arts and Entrepreneurship Center at A:shiwi College to strengthen and support local, family-based businesses. The purpose of the grant is to support community Artisans with technical and digital skills, including computer skills to strengthen their marketing and sales. The program also has a high-quality Hasselblad Camera and IMAC to produce high quality photos of Artisan products for internet marketing and sales. Artisans are welcome to use this resource and may contact Tyler Sice, Project Coordinator at (505)-879-7930, or tyker.sice@ashiwi.org to make an appointment. The ACCRC plans to re-institute an arts program at the College, and this grant will assist to promote traditional pottery making, painting, drawing, print making, fabric design and ceramics. Later when the new kiln arrives, we will allow community firing for a small fee at the College.

The program is located in a modular facility donated by the Shakopee Midewiwan Treaty Nation, and has a drop-in center, camera capability and WiFi for demonstrations and teaching. Artisans are welcome to stop by.

Early Childhood Zuni Language Immersion Program:

A grant of $450.00 from the W. K. Kellogg Foundation was provided to the ACCRC and the Pueblo of Zuni to support the development of an early childhood language immersion program at the college. The program will serve a cohort of 10 children with supportive services to parents and families. The ACCRC staff (Dr. R. Lowsayatee and B. Tsabetsaye) and the Executive Director are researching indigenous models of language immersion to include Maori, Native Hawaiian as well as other Pueblo and tribal language immersion programs. This program will support Zuni language fluency among children and their families.

American Rescue Plan Act Tribal Grant for Capital Projects:

Related to the two above grants is the American Rescue Plan Act of 2021 funds provided to the Pueblo of Zuni. We are so grateful to the Governor, Lt. Governor and Tribal Council for providing these funds to plan and construct an Early Childhood Center at the college to house the language immersion program. The Governor and Council have advocated that the Zuni language be given greater priority by local educational institutions to include the ACCRC, Zuni Public Schools and others to promote tribal language literacy. The funds provided will support construction of a new ECE facility at the college, design and architectural services, as well as construction.

The tribal grant will also fund the renovation and expansion of the art room facility at the college so more space is available to promote the creative arts and entrepreneurship program.

Buffalo Design Architects was selected by RFP to provide the design and document development services for the ECE and creative arts programs.

Strengthening the Tribal WiFi Network:
The ACCRC in coordination with the Pueblo of Zuni Tribal Council has developed an independent tribal wireless WiFi network for the community. The tribe applied for and received FCC authorization for the 2.5GHz Band Spectrums which cross our reservation. These bands (5 channels) are under the sovereign control of the Zuni Tribe. Initially, the ACCRC in partnership with a non-profit (Muralnet LLC) developed a small WiFi capability to close the “homework gap” by providing free wireless services to students K-12 and higher education that did not have access to connect to commercial or other means of broadband internet. This worked, but the system was soon found to be insufficient for the community. Since then, we have obtained ARPA funds from the tribe and a $50,000 grant from the State of NM to enhance the WiFi by purchasing and installing stronger broadcast radios, antennas and CPE modems and routers. The Zuni Tribal Council authorized the use of the Blackrock water tower to mount the antennas and radios as well as the tribal tower in the village.

This equipment upgrade work has been completed, and field testing and adjustments will occur in early January. Then outdoor modems and routers will be placed in or on homes without broadband services. The priorities will remain as stated and the service is free:

- Students grades K-12 with no access to broadband internet at home;
- students of ACCRC or other colleges without broadband or wireless at home;
- and community entrepreneurs and family business owners with access to WiFi or broadband internet. Call Elvis Panteah at

In the late evening of October 31, 2021, Google launched an interactive Doodle featuring the late We:wa. We:wa was a special person from Zuni’s history. The late We:wa was a diplomat, teacher, artist, advocate for Zuni rights/beliefs, and in today’s cisgender terminology, would be identified as Transgender.

A keyword search on any internet search engine of “Google Doodle We:wa” will lead you to the Google Doodle homepage where you can see the amazing artwork of Zuni’s own Mallery Quetawki and hear the Zuni Olla Maidens while you weave (play the game), and learn a little more about the late We:wa’s life. You will also find a “Behind the Doodle” video for more visual information, along with a brief write-up on the late We:wa, and learn more from the Artist.

While this opportunity is most certainly new and a little strange to some, we hope this provides a special conversation about acceptance and how important it is to honor our past in the best possible way.

The A:shiwi A:wan Museum and Heritage Center and the Pueblo of Zuni Archives have had the honor to work with this special project, and if we missed a few things, I hope they can be included in your conversations with others.

In honor of Native American Heritage Month in the U.S., today’s (11/1/21) interactive Doodle—illustrated by Zuni Pueblo guest artist Mallery Quetawki—celebrates Zuni (A:shiwi) Native American fiber artist, weaver, and potter the late We:wa (kee-wah). As a Łamana (thah-mah-nah), the late We:wa was a revered cultural leader and mediator within the Zuni tribe, devoting their life to the preservation of Zuni traditions and history.

As advised by the Zuni tribe, it is discouraged to speak of community members who have passed on within the present tense. Therefore, we refer to We:wa as “the late We:wa” out of respect for their memory and spirit.

The term “Two Spirit” became widely adopted in the 1990s to encompass the various non-binary gender identities and expressions amongst Indigenous peoples. In the Zuni tribe, Lamana is the recognized third gender outside of the male-female binary system. Historical records have used both “he” and “she” pronouns in reference to Lamana and the late We:wa. Because Lamana and many modern Indigenous Two-Spirit people are considered distinct from male and female genders, we have aligned with our Zuni community collaborators and elected to use the ungendered singular pronoun “they.”

The late We:wa was born of the Donashi:kwi (Dogwood clan) and a child of the Bit-an-kë: (Dogwood clan) around 1849 in Zuni Pueblo, a community indigenous to the land that is now known as New Mexico. In the Zuni tribe, Lamana is a recognized third gender outside of the male-female binary system and revered as a traditional cultural concept reflecting harmony and balance. Like most Łamana, at a young age the late We:wa began learning a variety of skills done by both men and women in the tribe. They became an expert weaver, a role traditionally taken on by men in the community, and created textiles using different looms. After years of training, the late We:wa became one of the first Zuni craftpeople to sell ceramics and woven goods to non-Indigenous people, which catalyzed the process of Indigenous crafts being appreciated as a fine art in the U.S.

The late We:wa also mastered essential Zuni beliefs, songs, and ceremonies to become a highly respected spiritual leader in the community. Their cultural expertise led to the late We:wa traveling with American anthropologists James and Matilda Stevenson to Washington, D.C. in 1885 in hopes of fostering cultural exchange. During the late We:wa’s landmark visit to the U.S. capital, they called upon high-ranking U.S. officials to protect Zuni lands and culture from encroaching settlers.

Even in the face of colonial policy, which threatens Indigenous peoples nationwide, the late We:wa’s dedication to their community never faltered. They returned to Zuni Pueblo, where they spent the remainder of their life as an artist and community leader. Today, the late We:wa’s legacy lives on in the approximately 10,000 Zuni people who safeguard the rich tapestry of Zuni heritage, and retain one of the most uninterrupted cultural lineages of modern Indigenous tribal communities in the United States.

Guest Artist Q&A with Mallery Quetawki

Today’s Doodle was illustrated by Zuni Pueblo guest artist Mallery Quetawki. Below, she shares her thoughts behind the making of this Doodle:

Q. What stands out most for you from the late We:wa’s story and legacy? The idea that We:wa was our first ambassador between the U.S. Government and the tribe is very impressive. We:wa learned English to aid our tribal leaders in DC. However, the biggest story to me that has pulled at my heartstrings is how he and his husband adopted so many children who had no one else. They had a wealthy household—not based on money and material, but on the warmth of his character in helping those in need and being in that dual role of spiritual and social guidance. He was a very devout person in our culture and religion and was thus blessed in life with his ability to speak to others and his craft at weaving and pottery. We:wa was a caregiver in both our physical and spiritual realms.

Q. What do you hope people will take away from this Doodle? I hope that people become aware of our traditional customs and the fact that they are very much in practice currently. Our ancient ways of life are still here and we can all learn from one another. We:wa was a male individual who lived as a woman. He is an ancestor of ours whom we think of so dearly.

If we could all be caring and empathetic to one another we can all live We:wa’s legacy.

A special thank you to Curtis Quam, Cordelia Hocee, and the A:shiwi A:wan Museum and Heritage Center for their key support on this project.

Q. What does creating a Doodle for the late We:wa mean to you personally? Personally, creating the We:wa Doodle was an honor, as We:wa was such a warm and generous individual who exemplified our core values as A:shiwi. To be representing my people on this Doodle is another honor that I will always be thankful for. We are a village filled with talented artists and I am absolutely grateful for this honor to represent our history and to tell it using our art.

Q. How did you approach illustrating the late We:wa’s story? Did you seek guidance from anyone else in the tribe? I was very fortunate to accompany our keepers of traditional knowledge to Washington D.C. a couple years ago to visit the Smithsonian Museum of the American Indian. On this trip I was able to view the collection created or collected during We:wa’s stay in DC in the late 1800’s. That up-close connection to our people’s past and We:wa’s role in our government relations with the U.S. gave me another sense of pride in where I come from. I was able to learn directly from our religious leaders and cultural keepers of knowledge of the items in that museum collection. I have kept that knowledge with me, as well as the research I had done on We:wa in a college course describing the dual gender roles that can be seen in our tribe. The very few photos of We:wa were not the only images I used to create the portrait. I made sure I included the character that We:wa was both in social and cultural contexts.

Zuni Pueblo MainStreet Promotes Small Business Saturday

Small Business Saturday® was created to bring more holiday shoppers to local small businesses. In 2011, the U.S. Senate passed a resolution in support of this day. Since its beginning, Small Business Saturday has gained momentum and is promoted in all 50 states by local MainStreet and other local organizations, including local governments. Support from companies and organizations such as FedEx, the Small Business Administration, and Main Street America have strengthened communities throughout the country. Even the President of the United States gives a shout out for Small Business Saturday.

The 2021 Small Business Saturday event promoted by Zuni Pueblo MainStreet brought out vendors who are a continued part of Zuni’s economy. Local brick and mortar businesses were promoted throughout the day. The one-day event was also promoted by two local dance groups: Kwili Yala and Hakunah. Shoppers from Zuni and the surrounding communities, and visitors passing through, found gifts for family and friends.

Zuni Pueblo MainStreet encourages Zuni residents to support local businesses throughout the year to strengthen the local economy. You are helping to employ locals, and the taxes collected help provide government services. Shopping at big box stores is convenient, but you will find treasures at small businesses. Look for gifts for yourself and others at the local galleries, have a make over at our local hair salon, hire a local mechanic to keep your vehicle running smoothly, purchase groceries locally, and don’t forget the local cuisine. Thank you for supporting our local businesses!

Route 4 Development was initially designed focusing on commercial development to allow local small business owners and outside business developers to build within the reservation, providing jobs for our Tribal members, and generating other sources of revenue for the Tribe. In addition, Route 4 Development was designed to address the housing shortage among our community members and workforce populations.

The Tribe is currently working on establishing the economic branch of the Tribe and has made the decision to focus on residential development while concurrently working on developing the economic branch. Buffalo Design Architects was selected as the consultant to assist the Tribe in revisiting the existing Master Plan approved in September, 2009, with the focus on residential development.

Subconsultants to Buffalo Design include Consensus Planning, Hozho Engineering and Hansell Group. The goal is to update the existing Master Plan with areas identified for residential and commercial development, utility alignments, roadway infrastructure, etc. Construction documents for the proposed residential development will be based off the approved Master Plan.

ROUTE 4 DEVELOPMENT (AKA CDA)

On May 12, 2021, a kick-off meeting was held via zoom with Tribal Leaders, Tribal programs from the Division of Public Works, Division of Public Safety, Division of Natural Resources, Zuni Housing Authority, Zuni Public School District and Buffalo Design. Subsequent meetings have been held with project stakeholders throughout the year and additional meetings are planned for the upcoming 2022 year. There will be public meetings (dependent on current Public Health Regulations), and community surveys to get input from members of our community on this significant endeavor by the Tribe. Be on the lookout for surveys and meetings. We value your input!

CELL TOWERS

The new cell towers were installed at the Tribal Administration Building (60-foot mono-tower), and at the Cell Tower Ridge (198-foot tower), on November 11, 2021. These are the first two towers that are owned and operated by the Tribe, which is a significant accomplishment. The new towers are equipped to host other cellular providers interested in providing cellular service to Zuni.

Transfer Station Reinforces “No Hot Ashes” Rule

Greetings from the Transfer Station.

As we move on into the New Year, we would like to inform our community on the reasons why we let everybody know not to be bringing hot ashes to the transfer station. During our time of fasting, we encountered numerous hot spots along with fires that started from the ash pit, which traditionally is not allowed.

We ask for our community to comply with simple rules that needs to be followed. There have been signs placed in the front that state “NO HOT ASHES”. The landfill we partner with is very strict about ash disposal, and we must comply with their policies.

If these are not followed, our community will not have a place to take ashes in the future.

ZTHFWC Becomes Shumak’ólo:wa Health Center

We are pleased to inform our Zuni Community that the name of our program will be changed from Zuni Teen Health & Family Wellness Center (ZTHFWC) to Shumak’ólo:wa Health Center (Dragonfly Health Center in English). The change in name is the result of the Zuni Teen Health & Family Wellness Center’s scope of work being reviewed and approved by the program’s contracting agency. The ZTHFWC initially served patients ages 9-24 for medical services and has since been approved to provide patients ages 9-30 years old with Medical Services. This change has gone through all the legal requirements by the program’s contracting agency and has been accepted by our P.L. 93-638 Indian Self Determination Contracting Agency.

We assure you that the name change will not affect or delay any current services. We will soon change the name on our building to reflect the photo above. Effective January 1, 2022, we now use the new name for all our official purposes.
